NOTICE OF REMOVAL

Pursuant to Title 28 U.S.C. § 1441, et seq. and 28 U.S.C. § 1332, Defendant, Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less, incorrectly sued as The Kroger Co. d/b/a Food 4 Less and Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less Midwest, by and through their counsel, hereby give notice of the removal of the above-captioned action from the Circuit Court of Cook County, Case No. 2020 L 005639, to the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, and in support thereof, state the following:

1. This action is being removed to federal court based upon the diversity of citizenship of the parties to this cause, and the existence of the requisite amount in controversy, as is also more fully stated below.

2. On or about May 26, 2020, Plaintiff Rebeca Manrique initiated the above-captioned lawsuit by filing a Complaint entitled Rebeca Manrique v. The Kroger Co. d/b/a Food 4 Less, and Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less Midwest, in the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois. A copy of the Complaint is attached hereto as Exhibit 1, and it is incorporated herein by reference.

3. On or about June 16, 2020, service was made upon Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less attached hereto as Exhibit 2.

4. The United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, has jurisdiction over the above-captioned lawsuit pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332 and 28 U.S.C. § 1441 for the following reasons:

- a. Plaintiff Rebeca Manrique., at the time the lawsuit was commenced and at all relevant times, has been a resident and citizen of the State of Illinois;
- b. The correct corporate name of the Defendant is Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less and The Kroger Co. is an incorrectly named party;
- c. Defendant Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less at the time the lawsuit was commenced and at all relevant times, has been an Ohio corporation with its principal places of business in California, making it a citizen of the State of California and the State of Ohio;
- d. Defendant The Kroger Co. at the time the lawsuit was commenced and at all relevant times, has been an Ohio corporation with its principal place of business located in Ohio, making it a citizen of the State of Ohio;
- e. According to the allegations contained in Plaintiff's Complaint herein, the amount of damages sought in this action by Plaintiff is in an amount in excess of the Circuit Court of Cook County's minimal jurisdictional limit of $50,000.00. Plaintiff Rebeca Manrique. claims that she sustained and continues to suffer serious injuries of a personal and permanent nature. (Exhibit 1, ¶ 9.) Such allegations are sufficient to trigger the duty to remove the case. McCoy v. General Motors Corp., 226 F. Supp. 2d 939 (N.D. Ill. 2002); Varkalis v. Werner Co. & Lowe's Home Ctr., No. 10 C 03331, 2010 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 84870 (N.D. Ill. Aug. 18, 2010), a copy of which decision is attached hereto as Exhibit 3.
- f. Based upon the foregoing, it is Defendants' good-faith belief that while liability, causation, and damages will be contested, the amount in controversy in this action exceeds $75,000.00, exclusive of interest and costs;

- g. Defendants, by and through their counsel, consent to the removal of this action;
- h. This Notice of Removal is being filed with the Clerk of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division, within thirty (30) days of service of the Summons and Complaint upon each Defendant;
- i. Because complete diversity exists and the minimum $75,000.00 threshold is satisfied, diversity jurisdiction exists and this action is properly removable pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1441(a).

5. Defendants will promptly file a copy of this Notice of Removal with the Clerk of the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois.

WHEREFORE, Defendants The Kroger Co. and Ralphs Grocery Company d/b/a Food 4 Less, respectfully requests that this case proceed before the United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois as an action properly removed.

Respectfully submitted,

COMPLAINT AT LAW

NOW COMES the Plaintiff, REBECA MANRIQUE, by and through her attorneys, ANKIN LAW OFFICE LLC, and complaining against Defendants, THE KROGER CO., doing business as FOOD 4 LESS (hereinafter referred to as "KROGER"), and RALPHS GROCERY COMPANY, doing business as FOOD 4 LESS MIDWEST (hereinafter referred to as "RALPHS GROCERY"), states as follows:

COUNT I – Negligence
(Manrique vs. The Kroger Co.)

1. On and prior to June 24, 2018, Defendant, KROGER, was a foreign corporation, doing business as FOOD 4 LESS, in the City of Alsip, County of Cook, and State of Illinois.
2. On and prior to June 24, 2018, Plaintiff, REBECA MANRIQUE, was a resident of the City of Blue Island, County of Cook, and State of Illinois.
3. On or about June 24, 2018, Defendant, KROGER, owned, maintained, and/or controlled a certain premises located at or near 12150 South Pulaski Road, in the City of Alsip, County of Cook, and State of Illinois.

4. On or about June 24, 2018, Plaintiff, REBECA MANRIQUE, was lawfully upon aforesaid premises located at or near 12150 South Pulaski Road, in the City of Alsip, County of Cook, and State of Illinois.

5. That at all times relevant, Defendant, KROGER, by and through its agents, employees, and/or assignees, had a duty to keep its premises in a reasonably safe condition for those persons lawfully upon the premises, including Plaintiff herein, REBECA MANRIQUE.

6. Notwithstanding aforesaid duty, Defendant, KROGER, by and through its agents, employees, and/or assignees, allowed smashed vegetables, produce, or other debris to exist on the floors of its premises for an unreasonable length of time, in an area frequented by those lawfully upon the premises, including Plaintiff herein, REBECA MANRIQUE.

7. At the aforesaid time and place, Plaintiff, REBECA MANRIQUE, slipped and fell on the smashed vegetables, produce, or other debris present on the floors of the premises owned, maintained, and/or controlled by Defendant, KROGER.

8. At the aforesaid time and place, Defendant, KROGER, by and through its agents, employees, and/or assignees, acted with less than reasonable care and was then and there responsible for one or more of the following careless acts and/or omissions:

- (a) Failed to make a reasonable inspection of its premises when Defendant knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that said inspection was necessary to prevent injury to Plaintiff and those similarly situated;
- (b) Failed to post warning signs notifying Plaintiff and other customers lawfully on its premises of the slipping hazard on the floor;
- (c) Failed to warn Plaintiff and other invitees of the dangerous condition of said premises when Defendant knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that said warning was necessary to prevent injury to Plaintiff and others similarly situated;
- (d) Improperly operated, managed, maintained and controlled said premises in allowing its floors to become and remain in a slippery condition;

- (e) Negligently failed to remove the smashed vegetables, slippery substance and/or debris from its floor when Defendant knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that it created a slipping hazard;
- (f) Carelessly and negligently allowed the floor of its premises to become and remain in a dangerous condition for a longer than reasonable period of time;
- (g) Allowed smashed vegetables, produce, and debris to exist upon the floor of its premises for an unreasonably long period of time;
- (h) Allowed said vegetables, produce, and debris to exist on its premises when Defendant knew, or in the exercise of ordinary care should have known, that this created a slipping/falling hazard upon the premises;
- (i) Allowed its produce aisles to exist in an unsafe condition for those lawfully upon the premises, including Plaintiff herein, REBECA MANRIQUE;
- (j) Carelessly and negligently failed to barricade off the slippery area when Defendant knew, or with the exercise of ordinary care should have known, of said dangerous condition; and
- (k) Was otherwise careless in the maintenance, ownership, and/or care of its premises.

9. As a direct and proximate result of one or more of the foregoing acts or omissions of Defendant, KROGER, Plaintiff, REBECA MANRIQUE, sustained serious and permanent injuries when she slipped and fell on Defendant's premises; was required to seek extensive medical consultation and treatment for said injuries; has expended, and will in the future expend, great sums of money to be healed and cured of her maladies; and, suffered, and will in the future continue to suffer, great pain, anguish, and physical and mental suffering.

WHEREFORE Plaintiff, REBECA MANRIQUE, prays for judgment against Defendant, THE KROGER CO., a Foreign Corporation doing business as FOOD 4 LESS, in such an amount in excess of FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLARS ($50,000.00) as will fairly and adequately compensate Plaintiff for her injuries, losses and damages as hereinabove alleged, for costs of this suit, and for any further relief this Honorable Court deems just and equitable.

Plaintiffs, two minors, by their mothers and next of friends, filed a product liability suit against defendant corporation and alleged that injuries caused to them during a car accident resulted from a defect in the corporation's vehicle. The corporation removed the case on the basis of diversity jurisdiction. The case was remanded to state court for failure to timely remove the case. The corporation moved for reconsideration of the remand.

Overview

In their complaint, the plaintiffs claimed that each occupant of the vehicle sustained lasting and permanent injuries. Along with its answer to the complaint, the corporation requested an admission from the plaintiffs that they sought damages in excess of $ 75,000, the amount necessary for federal diversity jurisdiction. When the plaintiffs did not respond on time, the corporation filed its notice of removal. The district court remanded the action to state court holding that it was apparent from the face of the complaint that the amount in controversy exceeded $ 75,000. On the corporation's motion for reconsideration, the district court found that U.S. Dist. Ct., N.D. Ill., E. Div., R. 81.2 did not obviate the corporation's responsibility to ascertain from a reasonable and common-sense reading of the complaint whether the action was removable. Since the plaintiffs' complaint alleged severe and permanent injuries, and sought damages for lost income, the corporation surely was on notice that the case was removable and it should have removed the case within 30 days of receipt of the complaint. Because the corporation did not do so, its removal was untimely under 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b).

Outcome

The corporation's motion to reconsider and reinstate the case was denied.

Removal to the federal district courts in Illinois is aided by U.S. Dist. Ct., N.D. Ill., E. Courts have routinely held that when a plaintiff alleges serious, permanent injuries and significant medical expenses, it is obvious from the face of the complaint that the plaintiff's damages exceed the jurisdictional amount, thus triggering the 30-day removal period under the first sentence of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b).

HN6 [📌] Procedural Matters, Time Limitations

The United States District Court for the Northern District of Illinois, Eastern Division finds that to the extent that U.S. Dist. Ct., N.D. Ill., E. Div., R. 81.2 provides the exclusive procedure by which a defendant may remove Illinois state complaints that lack an express ad damnum clause, it impermissibly contravenes the federal removal statute. A local rule may not limit or contravene the plain language and intent of a federal statute. Fed. R. Civ. P. 83. The first sentence of 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b) does not specifically define what triggers removability in the initial complaint, but the intent of the 30-day time limit for removal is to resolve the issue of removal as soon as possible and allow the case to proceed without fear of uprooting the proceedings and transplanting them elsewhere. Although the 30-day time limit in 28 U.S.C.S. § 1446(b) is not jurisdictional, it is mandatory and strictly applied. The defendant bears the burden of establishing removability, and all doubts about federal jurisdiction are resolved in favor of remand to state court. By mandating an exclusive procedure by which defendants must remove a particular class of complaints in Illinois, a procedure that can never satisfy the 30-day initial-pleading time limit under § 1446(b), Rule 81.2 interferes with the federal removal statute's policy of expediting proceedings in the appropriate forum.

[*940] MEMORANDUM OPINION AND ORDER

Plaintiffs filed a product liability suit in the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, against defendant General Motors Corporation ("General Motors"), alleging that injuries caused to the minor plaintiffs during a car accident resulted from a defect in a General Motors vehicle. General Motors removed the case to federal court on the basis of diversity jurisdiction. This Court remanded the case to state court for failure to timely remove the case. General Motors now moves for reconsideration of the remand. For the reasons set out herein, we deny General Motors' motion. (R. 6-1.)

RELEVANT FACTS

On April 12, 2002, Plaintiffs filed a product liability complaint in the Circuit Court of Cook County. Plaintiffs allege that the brakes [*2] on their General Motors' vehicle failed causing the vehicle to crash into an oncoming car.

Plaintiffs claim that each occupant of the vehicle sustained "lasting and permanent injuries" and other damages including "severe pain, emotional distress, disability, lost value and enjoyment of life, future loss of income, medical expenses, loss of normal life, disfigurement and paralysis." (R. 1, Notice of Removal, Ex. A, Compl. PP 10, 13.) In accordance with the Illinois Rules of Civil Procedure, which prohibit express ad damnum clauses in personal injury complaints, Plaintiffs requested damages for each count only in the amounts necessary to comply with Illinois Circuit Court's rules of assignment (in this case $ 50,000). 735 ILCS § 5/2-604.

On May 20, 2002, General Motors filed an answer to the complaint and simultaneously requested an admission from the plaintiffs that they were seeking damages in excess of $ 75,000, the amount necessary for diversity jurisdiction in federal court. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332. Plaintiffs' response was due on or before June 17, 2002. The information requested would be deemed admitted if Plaintiffs did not respond by that date. [*3] See Ill. Sup. Ct. R. 216. Plaintiffs did not respond until July 3. On July 15, 2002, within 30 days after the due date of the response to the request for admission, as well as within 30 days of Defendant's actual receipt of the plaintiffs' admission that their alleged damages exceeded $ 75,000, General Motors filed its notice of removal. This Court remanded the action to the Circuit Court of Cook County, holding that it was apparent from the face of Plaintiffs' complaint that the amount in controversy exceeded the $ 75,000 jurisdictional minimum. Defendant timely filed the instant motion to reconsider.

ANALYSIS

HN1 Removal is governed by 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b). HN2 which states in pertinent part:

The notice of removal of a civil action or proceeding shall be filed within thirty [*941] days after the receipt by the defendant . . . of the initial pleading setting forth the claim for relief upon which such action or proceeding is based If the case stated by the initial pleading is not removable, a notice of removal may be filed within thirty days after receipt by the defendant . . . of a copy of an amended pleading, motion, order or other paper from which [*4] it may first be ascertained that the case is one which is or has become removable.

28 U.S.C. § 1446(b).

HN3 Removal to the federal district courts in Illinois also is aided by Local Rule 81.2, which provides a procedure for defendants faced with a complaint alleging a damages amount that satisfies the Illinois jurisdictional minimum but is below the federal jurisdictional amount in controversy. Local Rule 81.2 requires removing defendants to file along with their notice of removal: (1) a statement that the defendant in good faith believes the amount in controversy exceeds the jurisdictional amount; and (2) a response by plaintiff to an interrogatory or request for admission stating that the damages sought exceeds $ 75,000.

General Motors argues in its motion to reconsider that its removal was proper and timely because it complied with the procedure outlined in Local Rule 81.2. But HN4 we do not believe that this Local Rule obviates a defendant's responsibility to ascertain from a reasonable and common-sense reading of the complaint whether the action is removable. Roberson v. Orkin Exterminating Co., 770 F. Supp. 1324, 1328-29 (N.D. Ind. 1991). [*5] Nor does the Local Rule provide a safe harbor that encourages defendants to wait for discovery responses that simply confirm what was obvious from the face of the complaint; in such cases, defendants are not insulated from a remand to state court. See, e.g., Century Assets Corp. v. Solow, 88 F. Supp. 2d 659, 662 (E.D. Tex. 2000) (rejecting on policy grounds defendant's argument that cases are not removable until there has been an absolute affirmation via discovery request that more than $ 75,000 was in issue).

In this case, as this Court noted in its initial minute order remanding this case, it is obvious from a common-sense reading of the complaint that Plaintiffs were seeking in excess of $ 75,000 in damages. Plaintiffs alleged that they suffered "lasting and permanent injuries" and incurred bills related to "medical, surgical, hospital, and nursing care for their injuries" as well as "[lost] wages and profits which they otherwise would have earned and acquired." (R. 1, Notice of Removal, Ex. A, Compl. PP 10, 13.) Plaintiffs further claimed that they suffered "severe pain, emotional distress, disability, lost value and enjoyment of life, future loss of income, [*6] medical expenses, loss of normal life, disfigurement and paralysis." (Id. at P 13.) In the parlance of product liability suits, these statements should sound warning bells in defendants' ears that significant damages are sought. Indeed, HN5 courts have routinely held that when plaintiffs allege serious, permanent injuries and significant medical expenses, it is obvious from the face of the complaint that the plaintiffs' damages exceeded the jurisdictional amount, thus triggering the 30-day removal period under the first sentence of § 1446(b). See Huntsman Chem. Corp. v. Whitehorse Tech., 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13282, 1997 WL 548043, at *5 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 2, 1997). See also Carleton v. CRC Indus., Inc., 49 F. Supp. 2d 961, 962 (S.D. Tex. 1999) (concluding that it was "undeniably facially apparent" that plaintiffs' damages exceeded $ 75,000 because he alleged that he contracted leukemia from defendant's chemicals); Roberson, 770 F. Supp. at 1329; Turner v. Wilson Foods Corp., 711 F. Supp. 624, 626 [*942] (N.D. Ga. 1989) (holding that allegations in complaint that plaintiff suffered severe burns, permanent scarring, pain and suffering, and [*7] medical expenses provided defendant with sufficient information to ascertain removability); Mielke v. Allstate Ins. Co., 472 F. Supp. 851, 853 (E.D. Mich. 1979) ("there is no reason to allow a defendant additional time if the presence of grounds for removal are unambiguous in light of the defendant's knowledge and the claims made in the initial complaint"); Lee v. Altamil Corp., 457 F. Supp. 979, 981 (M.D. Fla. 1978); Horak v. Color Metal of Zurich, 285 F. Supp. 603, 606 (D.N.J. 1968) (holding that where complaint alleges that plaintiff suffered loss of right arm, defendant on notice that claim exceeds jurisdictional amount). But cf. Height v. Southwest Airlines, Inc., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13880, 2002 WL 1759800, at *4 (N.D. Ill. July 29, 2002); Ford v. Mannesmann Dematic Corp., 2000 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 14560, 2000 WL 1469371, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 2, 2000); Abdish v. Phillip Morris, Inc., 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8640, 1998 WL 311991, *3 (N.D. Ill. June 4, 1998).¹ Thus, because plaintiffs, two of whom are minors, alleged severe and permanent injuries, including paralysis, and sought damages for lost income General Motors surely [*8] was on notice that the case was removable and it should have removed the case within 30 days of receipt of the complaint.²

[9] Moreover, HN6 to the extent that Local Rule 81.2 provides the exclusive procedure by which defendants may remove Illinois state complaints that lack an express ad damnum clause, we believe that it impermissibly contravenes the federal removal statute. A Local Rule may not limit or contravene the plain language and intent of a federal statute. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 83 ("[a] local rule shall be consistent with -- but not duplicative of -- Acts of Congress"); 28 U.S.C. § 2071(a) (local court rules "shall be consistent with Acts of Congress"); United States v. Claros, 17 F.3d 1041, 1044-45 (7th Cir. 1994) (stating that "[a] local rule may not be inconsistent with the Constitution, a statute of the United States, or with a national rule governing the conduct of litigation in the United States courts"). The first sentence of § 1446(b) does not specifically define what triggers removability in the initial complaint, but the intent of the 30-day time limit for removal is "to resolve the issue of removal as soon as possible and allow the [*943] case to proceed . . . without fear of uprooting the proceedings and transplanting them elsewhere." [*10] See Huntsman, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13282, 1997 WL 548043, at *5. Although the 30-day time limit in § 1446(b) is not jurisdictional, it is mandatory and strictly applied. Dorezio v. UAL Corp., 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 18809, 2002 WL 31236290, at *3 (N.D. Ill. Oct. 2, 2002). See also Shamrock Oil & Gas Corp. v. Sheets, 313 U.S. 100, 108-09, 85 L. Ed. 1214, 61 S. Ct. 868 (1941). The defendant bears the burden of establishing removability, and all doubts about federal jurisdiction are resolved in favor of remand to state court. Perry v. Willis,

¹ We recognize that our holding in this case conflicts with recent opinions of some of our district court colleagues. We believe, however, that those cases are distinguishable on their facts, especially since the plaintiffs in those cases were not minors, and did not plead the same serious, permanent injuries, paralysis and loss of income as the plaintiffs in this case. Moreover, as discussed below, our decision in this case stems from our fundamental disagreement with the premise, apparently assumed in those other cases, that the blanket application of Local Rule 81.2 is required in all cases removed from Illinois state court where an express ad damnum is lacking.

² We are cognizant that the interplay between the Illinois statute forbidding an ad damnum in personal injury actions and the $ 75,000 jurisdictional minimum of 28 U.S.C. § 1332 may create confusion or subject defendants to the burden of either multiple removals or an untimely removal. But the potential burden of multiple removals is no more inefficient than filing an answer and discovery requests prior to seeking removal. Moreover, oftentimes a defendant's initial removal will be sufficient because the federal court will agree with the defendant's good-faith appraisal of the damages sought in the complaint. Even if a defendant prematurely removes a case based on his mistaken, but good-faith, belief that an action meets the jurisdictional amount, he is not prejudiced in federal court because there is no prohibition on a subsequent removal if the action later meets federal diversity jurisdiction requirements. See Benson v. SI Handling Sys., Inc., 188 F.3d 780, 782 (7th Cir. 1999).

110 F. Supp. 2d 1197, 1198 (E.D. Mo. 2000). By mandating an exclusive procedure by which defendants must remove a particular class of complaints in Illinois, a procedure that can never satisfy the 30-day initial-pleading time limit under § 1446(b), Local Rule 81.2 interferes with the federal removal statute's policy of expediting proceedings in the appropriate forum. Accordingly, we doubt the Local Rule's general applicability as an exclusive mode of removal in Illinois, as well as its specific application in this case.

For the foregoing reasons, we hold that the removability of Plaintiffs' suit was obvious from the face [11] of the complaint, and that therefore General Motors should have removed the case within 30 days of receiving the initial complaint. Because it did not do so, its removal was untimely under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b), and therefore Defendant's motion to reconsider and reinstate the case is denied. (R. 6-1.)

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

The defendants removed the instant lawsuit from the Circuit Court of Cook County and the plaintiff has filed a motion to remand. For the reasons stated below, the motion is granted.

I. FACTS

Defendant Werner Co. ("Werner") allegedly manufactured and designed a nine-foot fiberglass stepladder sold by Defendant Lowe's Home Centers Inc. ("Lowe's"). On or around December 21, 2008, Michael Varkalis was using the stepladder in his garage when it buckled and Michael fell and struck his head on the garage floor. He suffered irreversible brain damage and died on August 18, 2009.

II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

On March 15, 2010, Mary Varkalis, as independent administrator of Michael Varkalis's estate, filed a seven-count complaint in the Circuit Court of Cook County, Illinois, alleging product liability, negligence, [*2] breach of warranty, and a Survival Act claim. Specifically, the plaintiff alleged that "[w]hile Mr. Varkalis was on the ladder, it buckled, causing him to fall with great force and violence to the ground below." Comp. at P6. The complaint further alleged that "as a direct and proximate result of the ladder bucking, Michael Varkalis was severely injured, sustaining irreversible brain damage which led to his death on August 18, 2009." Id. at P7. The defendants, Werner and Lowe's, were properly served on March 22, 2010, and March 24, 2010, respectively.

On April 19, 2010, the defendants filed answers and affirmative defenses to the plaintiff's complaint. In addition, they filed a motion to dismiss counts III and VI on the ground that the plaintiff should have filed separate causes of action for breach of express and implied warranties given that separate recovery was available under each. In response to the motion to dismiss, on May 19, 2010, the plaintiff filed an amended complaint removing the word "express" from Counts III and VI, and proceeding only with the breach of implied warranty cause of action against each of the defendants.

On June 1, 2010, the defendants filed a request to [*3] admit facts whereby they requested that the plaintiff admit that she sought to recover from the defendants an amount in excess of $75,000, exclusive of interests and costs. One day later, on June 2, 2010, the defendants removed the case to this court pursuant to the court's diversity jurisdiction. The plaintiff then filed the instant motion to remand on the ground that the removal was untimely.

III. ANALYSIS

A. Standard for Removal

28 U.S.C. § 1446(b) states that a notice of removal must "be filed within thirty days after the receipt by the defendant, through service or otherwise, of a copy of the initial pleadings setting forth the claim for relief upon which such action or proceedings is based." 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b). Any procedural defect in a case being removed to federal court must be remanded to the state court. Disher v. Citigroup Global Mkts., Inc., 487 F. Supp. 2d 1009, 1015 (S.D. Ill. 2007) ("where there is doubt as to whether the requirements have been satisfied, the case should be remanded.") (internal citations omitted). Under 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b), a defendant may file a notice of removal within thirty days from receipt of an amended pleading. See, e.g., Benson v. SI Handling Systems, Inc., 188 F.3d 780, 782 (7th Cir. 1999) (citing [*4] 28 U.S.C. § 1446(b)). However, this general rule applies only when the original complaint is not removable. Mortgage Elec. Registration Sys. v. Rothman, No. 04 C 5340, 2005 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12270, 2005 WL 497794, at *5 (N.D. Ill. Feb. 28, 2005).

B. Amount in Controversy

The plaintiff contends that removal was improper as a matter of law because the defendants did not file the notice of removal within thirty days of service of the original complaint, which was April 21, 2010. Instead, the defendants filed their notice of removal on June 2, 2010, and maintain that it was timely regardless of the fact that the filing date was over sixty days from notice of the original complaint. According to what the court understands the defendants to be arguing, it was only when they received the amended complaint that they became aware of the possibility for removal because the amount in controversy alleged in the original complaint was not sufficient to trigger diversity jurisdiction.¹

¹ It is difficult to decipher exactly what the defendants' argument is in response to the motion to remand. While on the one hand they cite to caselaw stating that a defendant may remove within 30 days after receiving a copy of an amended pleading [*5] from which it may first be ascertained that the case is one which is removable, they also argue that they "technically still have not received a pleading, motion, order, or "other paper" to confirm that this case is removable" and thus, "one could argue that this case is not yet ripe for removal." Response at 2, Dkt. #12 (emphasis in original). They go on to argue that "[h]owever, because plaintiff has not contested the removal on the amount in controversy issue [and instead challenges only as to timeliness], the Court can reasonably assume that she will seek more than $75,000." Id. Either way, both of the defendants' arguments fail for the reasons described later in this order.

Diversity jurisdiction exists where the parties are diverse and where the amount in controversy exceeds $75,000, not including interest and costs. See 28 U.S.C. § 1332(a). There is no dispute that the parties are diverse; rather, the defendants argue that the plaintiff did not adequately state an amount in controversy that would have put the defendants on notice of the possibility for removal to federal court. According to the defendants, the original and amended complaint were ambiguous because they sought [*6] only "a sum in excess of the minimal jurisdictional limits of the Law Division of the Circuit Court of Cook County," which amounts to $50,000.

Generally, when a complaint does not express the ad damnum in excess of $75,000, the defendant may file its removal notice within thirty days from the plaintiff's admission that they are seeking more than $75,000. Height v. Southwest Airlines, Inc., No. 02 C 2854, 2002 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13880, 2002 WL 1759800, 2-3 (N.D. Ill. Jul. 29, 2002); Abdish v. Phillip Morris, Inc., No. 98 C 1310, 1998 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 8640, 1998 WL 311991, at *1-3 (N.D. Ill. June 4, 1998). In this case, on June 1, 2010, the defendants filed a request to admit facts to establish that the amount in controversy exceeded $75,000, but did not wait for a response before filing the notice of removal.

A defendant must employ "a reasonable and commonsense reading" of the complaint to determine removability. RBC Mortgage Comp. v. Couch, 274 F. Supp. 2d 965, 969 (N.D. Ill. 2003)(citing McCoy v. GMC, 226 F. Supp. 2d 939, 941 (N.D. Ill. 2002)). A "defendant [is barred from] circumvent[ing] the thirty-day time limit for removal when it is obvious that a complaint states a claim for damages in excess of $75,000, even though it is not explicitly [*7] stated in its ad damnum clause." Gallo v. Homelite Consumer Prods., 371 F. Supp. 2d 943, 947 (N.D. Ill. 2005). Absolute confirmation of the amount in controversy is not necessary where the "plaintiffs allege serious, permanent injuries and significant medical expenses" which exceed $75,000 on the face of the complaint. Fields v. Jay Henges Enters., No. 06-323-GPM, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47948, 2006 WL 1875457, at *3 (S.D. Ill. June 30, 2006). See also RBC Mortgage Co., 274 F. Supp. 2d at 969 (complaints alleging "serious, permanent injuries" are "unambiguous[ly]" ripe for removal because the plaintiff almost certainly will seek more than $75,000)(citation omitted); McCoy, 226 F. Supp. 2d at 941 (the 30-day removal period under the first sentence of § 1446(b) is triggered when the complaint alleges "serious, permanent injuries and significant medical expenses, [and] it is obvious from the face of the complaint that the plaintiffs' damages exceed[] the jurisdiction[al] amount").

Under this standard, the allegations in the original complaint sufficiently alleged the types of serious, permanent injuries to place the defendants on notice that the plaintiff will "almost certainly" seek more than $75,000 such that the [*8] defendants could have removed the complaint. The defendants may not restart the tolling clock by requiring absolute certainty of the amount in controversy. Fields, No. 06-323-GPM, 2006 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 47948, 2006 WL 1875457, at *7 ("defendants should never . . . be able to toll the removal clock indefinitely through reliance on the discovery process to establish jurisdictional prerequisites with absolute certainty"). See also Huntsman Chem. Corp. v. Whitehorse Techs., No. 97 C 3842, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 13282, 1997 WL 548043, at *5 (N.D. Ill. Sept. 2, 1997)(citing Mielke v. Allstate Ins. Co., 472 F. Supp. 851, 853 (D.C. Mich. 1979)("there is no reason to allow a defendant additional time if the presence of grounds for removal are unambiguous in light of the defendant's knowledge and the claims made in the initial complaint.")). Because the removal was untimely, the plaintiff's motion to remand the case to state court is granted.²

IV. CONCLUSION

For the reasons stated [*9] above, the motion to remand the case to the Circuit Court of Cook County [8-1] is granted. The clerk is directed to remand this matter forthwith.
